

Inside the Shell

By Michele Usher

BA Photography Student (Michele512879)

Level 3 Sustaining Your Practice: Portfolio Review

This series has been created around the coastal community of Ngawi (pronounced 'naa-wee'). A small fishing village which is located just five kilometres from Cape Palliser, the southernmost point of New Zealand's North Island. Known for having more bulldozers per capita than permanent residents this project scratches the hard-male surface and discovers what is holding the community together, the very backbone under the shell.

